Second Year Beekeeping Course 2015

With Walt Fitzgerald

Recommended for beekeepers in their second or third year and others who have interest

Course will address student's own apiaries with the goal of answering the many questions that are often asked too late that boil down to - "Well I established a colony and prepared it for winter so NOW WHAT?"

Specific student questions and many of the questions that come up year after year will be addressed.

Course will be paced using the bees life cycle as it relates to the apiary yearly calendar.

Many more general topics and hive management practices aimed at maintaining a maintaining a nearly self-sufficient apiary will be covered with necessary equipment and its use defined.

Evening classes have been requested and will occur at the 4H center on March 3rd, Maple room, and April 2nd, Beech room, Starting at 7:00 P.M. A third class will be scheduled as required or desired by the students at a later date.

These scheduled dates do not interfere with other MCBA meetings or the below recommended Intermediate class which covers different content in a very detailed manner.
